APPLIED LINGUISTICS AND MULTILINGUALISM

Orientation
September 29, 2020
WHAT IS APPLIED LINGUISTICS

- interdisciplinary field of inquiry that seeks to understand the role of languages in the lives of individuals and society.
- It draws on theoretical and methodological approaches from various disciplines from the humanities to the social and natural sciences.
- It explores language, its users and uses, and their underlying social and psycholinguistic conditions.

We investigate questions such as:
- How do we express power?
- Do men and women speak differently?
- How do we use language on the Internet?
- How do I learn a foreign language?
- What is my brain like if I speak more than one language?

GRADING POLICY UPDATE

Effective July 1, 2020, the Department of Applied Linguistics & Multilingualism has revised the grading policy to the following:

- Only two major course requirements can be used with the P/NP grading option:
- Language level 4 proficiency courses (a B- or better is a requirement for the APLX major) and APLX 190 (Senior Seminar) can both be taken only for a letter grade.
HONORS & HIGHEST HONORS

Your GPA for honors will be calculated based on your grades in the following courses:

• All APLX courses including APLX 80;
• Upper-division language courses (taken on campus); and
• All non-APLX elective course(s).

A GPA of
• 3.75-3.899 in these courses is High Honors,
• 3.9 or better in these courses is Highest Honors.
The department of Languages & Applied Linguistics has put forward a proposal for a certificate program in Teaching English as a Second or Other Language. The proposal is awaiting campus approval, but we are hopeful that it will happen this year still.

• The TESOL certificate program is aimed at undergraduate students who want to teach English as an L2, whether in the U.S. or overseas.

• Learning objectives:
  • Identify structural elements of the English language, including elements of its morpho-syntactic and phonological systems, relationships between these elements, and common challenges these elements pose to learners of English.
  • Identify variables, both linguistic and non-linguistic, that play a role in language acquisition.
  • Develop effective, learner-centered lesson plans and instructional materials reflecting contemporary views on language teaching and learning.
  • Develop effective tools to assess student achievement of language learning objectives.
  • Reflect critically on pedagogical choices in terms of their effect
PROPOSED TESOL CERTIFICATE (PENDING CAMPUS APPROVAL)

The program consists of 6 required courses:

1. LING 50 Introduction to Linguistics (Taught every quarter)
2. APLX 101 Second Language Acquisition (Taught every winter quarter)
3. APLX 113 Intercultural Communication (Taught every other year)
4. APLX 135 Second Language Teaching (Taught every spring)
5. APLX 136 Second Language Assessment (APLX 135) (Taught every other year)
6. APLX 138 English Grammar for TESOL (Taught every year)

• If you are interested in the TESOL certificate, your four upper-division electives must be APLX 113, 135, 136 and 138.
